Nothing new in politics.

Public opinion neutral on the measures against the Jesuits.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

We gladly turn from the weary treadmill of politics, bankruptcies, frauds, crossed cheques and other incidents of the bubbling life of the River Plate, to notice an event which has nothing to do with money, hides, wool or tallow, although it has a remote future connection with bones—at least broken ones—and may exercise some influence on the future social condition of a country in which example exercises a more powerful influence than some may be willing to admit.

On Thursday last Miss Romula Passo passed, with flying colours, at the University, her examination in the first and second years of preparatory studies for the noble career of Medicine; and, what is specially remarkable, shone above all in Mathematics, a branch of knowledge which the 'lords of creation have hitherto considered to be exclusively their own. Before commenting on an event so novel and unexpected in Buenos Ayres, we beg to salute with all respect this brave young lady of 'sweet sixteen' who, at such a tender age, comes forward at the head of an innovation which may yet have a far greater effect on the social condition of her country than the fair aspirant to medical honours imagines; and, knowing as we do the progressive spirit of the 'juventud' of Buenos Ayres, we are in no way surprised at the chivalrous cheers with which her fellow students of the rougher sex greeted the success of the first lady that has ever stood at the bar of their Alma Mater.

Miss Passo's brilliant debut in the University brings the vexed and formidable question of Women's Rights to the front with a bound; and now that the electioneering squabble is drawing to a close, and our colleagues are like to have more space in their columns than they can conveniently fill, they will perhaps welcome the topic as a genuine god-send, and handle it with their usual ability.

There are many who have thought that, owing to the Argentine woman, and especially the Porteña, being in almost every respect a womanly woman, (the manly woman is not unknown in other parts) the River Plate would for many years to come be safe from the 'Rights' question which so many fair dames and damsels in the United States, and some few in England, have so vigorously kept before the world for such a long time past. But Miss Passo's ambition, 'the vice of noble minds,' has led her to aspire to the only patent of nobility known in this democratic land, the title of Doctor; and if the social fabric were to be shaken to its centre by such daring, it would not astonish us. The next lady that enters the University will probably aspire to be a Doctor of Law, and then, if we may be allowed a homely expression, 'the fat will be in the fire' in earnest. From the Bar to the Bench is but a step, and with ladies at the first and on the second, Othello's farewell to the 'pride, pomp and circumstance of glorious war,' or Wolseley's to 'all his greatness,' was not longer or more despairing than that which merchants may take of their hopes of a reduction in the outrageous fees in bankruptcy or any other cases. If there is one thing on earth to which ladies object on principle, it is a reduction of expenses, or any interference with the vigorous circulation of capital; and the 'cœlum non animam mutant' maxim will be found to apply neatly to ladies who exchange the tea-table for the legal 'toga' or the surgeon's knife.

It is worthy of remark, and yet by no means singular, that the strong-minded daughters of Eve who aspire to equality in every respect with their male fellow mortals, and to enter their most cherished professions, invariably take to the medical career, thereby confessing that, in spite of all their bluster, they are women still. To heal, to soothe, to minister to the suffering and the helpless, is implanted in woman's nature by the God who made her; but let her go a step beyond this part of her mission, and she is unsexed and unfit to wield that mysterious influence which Providence intended her to exercise on human affairs.

In the United States and England there are now, we believe, several lady doctors in full practice: but they have up hill work of it, and it requires a deal of advertizing and complimentary puffing to induce the public to employ them. This may be prejudice, as, up to a certain point, but it does not extend very far, there is no reason why a lady should not be an excellent physician and be able to diagnose any ordinary disease: but here, we fancy, she must stop: As for the surgeon's domain, it is closed to her: she may pass the Royal College of Surgeons a dozen times over with equal eclat to our friend Dr Rorke, but no one out of Bedlam would let her use the knife on anything more serious than a lock of hair. It is a pity that there are insuperable objections to ladies taking to the Church; there would certainly be a religious revival and up-heaving of the nations with ladies in the pulpit: but they might upheave the wrong way, and spoil the symmetry of this best of all possible worlds.

After all, Miss Passo's debut may not mean so much, and Doctors of Law and Medicine may calm their fears of having their 'toldos' invaded. The 'Right' of ladies to be anything they please in this free land is fully admitted, and the future Dr. Passo may congratulate herself on having to overcome none of the obstacles which her sister pioneers met with in England and the United States. Women's Rights are safe enough in the Plate, but there are unpleasant signs abroad that the vital question of Employment for Women (quite another affair) has already invaded this young and prosperous country: but of this more anon.

THE BACHELORS' BALL.

'There was a sound of revelry by night' on Thursday, and the lamp of the old Coliseum 'shone o'er fair women and brave men' at one of the most superb entertainments ever given in this city. Whatever may be said by statisticians and other dogmatic people about bachelors in general, and old bachelors (whenever they succeed in getting old) in particular, it must fairly be admitted that, in the matter of balls, it is hard to beat them.

The fete of Thursday night yielded in nothing to the most gorgeous ones we can remember being given by the Progreso or La Plata Clubs or any private family of this city. Money and good taste seem to have gone hand in hand in preparing the venerable concert hall for the occasion. A gorgeous scarlet carpet covered the floor, and flowers, flags and other decorations were so tastefully distributed that a good deal of the bareness almost inseparable from a public ball-room was done away with, and it required only a slight stretch of imagination to imagine oneself in the palatial private ball-room of some city magnate. The refreshment room was very tastefully adorned, and the non-dancing loungers saw, or thought they saw, many a promising flirtation going on in its comfortable recesses.

The 'coup d'oeil' at midnight, when dancing was in full swing, was striking. Two stalwart British tars in full fig held a rope across the end of the room, to keep the non-dancers from the whirling couples within Terpsychore's charmed circle. The presence of several officers from H,M's. ships on the station gave brilliancy to the moving picture, the colour being amply supplied by the splendid toilettes of the ladies, of whom there were about 150 present, while the gentlemen numbered 250, a proportion which showed that the Ball Committee are pertectly 'au fait' in dancing statistics.

Of the 150 ladies, many were Porteñas, some of them the handsomest of that handsome race, and their dark eyes and tresses contrasted pleasingly with the golden hair and azure eyes of their compeers of Northern races. As usual in all ball-rooms, the question as to whether the Blondes or Brunettes carried off the palm of the evening was raised by their respective admirers. We decline to pin ourselves to any opinion on such a ticklish subject. From a quiet nook, 'far from the madding crowd,' our reporter watched them all, and went home whistling an air from the Beggar's Opera, which leads us to suppose that he admired both the blondes and the brunettes with the impartiality of Captain Macheath himself.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning this splendid fete was brought to a close, but not before a guest almost as unwelcome as the Comendadore at Don Giovanni's supper made his uninvited appearance, viz. Jupiter Pluvius, who, feeling riled possibly at not having received a card, came down in a fashion that rendered 'getting home' a most disagreeable duty. The British Bachelors of Buenos Ayres have decided reason to feel proud of the unqualified success of their entertainment, on which we offer them the Standard's congratulations.

TIAHUANACO RUINS.

(By General B. Mitre).

These 'souvenirs de voyage,' published only lately, are reminiscences of General Mitre's travels in Bolivia and Peru. This little work will excite great interest in all archeological societies, and amongst all amateurs of antiquity, architectonic features or historic remains. The mysteries, or rather the forgotten traditions and lost customs these historical remains embody, are the chief features of interest. Architecture has always reflected the characteristics of race and creed, obeying climatic and topographical influences. In the north of Europe architecture is all angles, whilst the Grecian taste, blended with the Moorish corners and Egyptian quadratures, prevails in the warmer South. The Ruins of Tiahuanaco reveal the principles of Euclid, and the architects and masons of this pre-historic temple must have been born with innate ideas of geometry, if innate ideas are not a chimera.

General Mitre, in his limpid and pure style, admirably describes the surrounding grandeur of the scenery, the Sorata in the distance and the Andes all around. The ruins are situate on a highland in the Cordillera; this highland is like Afghanistan, a second roof of the world, over 300 miles long by 100 miles wide. Mountains, it is said, inspire the spirit of freedom and create energy in a race. The poor Indians and the Bolivians at present certainly do not corroborate the saying.

The question has been often agitated as to who built Tiahuanaco. It is erroneous to suppose that the Quichuas, under the Incas, or the Aymaraes, ever touched a stone at the construction of this temple. The languages of these races have not even expressions for the different kinds of stone, and their social condition and early traditions bespeak a race of shepherds and agriculturists; they never had other implements than those made of wood and stone. The very monuments these two races have constructed are of mud, hardened or heated. The probabilities are that Tiahuanaco was built by a prehistoric race, thousands of years ago, when Abraham was minding his sheep near the banks of the Jordan. There is but little doubt that the ruins on this continent date from a period that leaves the antiquity of the Pyramids in the shade, and can no more be traced than the race which built the Kildare round-tower.

The traveller, as he enters the highland of the Tiahuanaco, is struck by the uniformity and symmetry of two rectangular hills, shaped by the hand of man; in the distance he sees the Titicaca Lake, which is as treacherous as the Lago Maggiore. When approaching the two hills, one discovers that they are pyramids of earth.

The first impression, whilst gazing on the ruins, is one of confusion and grandeur. Gradually the mind conceives the general plan of the structure; long rows of pillars present a druidical aspect. This part of the ruin, called the temple, is quadrilateral, with rows of pillars on each side. Fifteen paces divide each pillar, which projects four yards from the earth; one pillar lies thrown and measures in 'toto' five yards, including the part formerly under the earth. They are all monoliths and very well worked. The second part of the ruin is vulgarly called the palace. A little to the north is a construction, similar to a cloaca entrance; it is said to be a tunnel that communicated once with the islands in the lake. General Mitre refutes this, and considers it a hydraulic construction to bring water from the lake; and states that the Indians all around have natural hydraulic talents, no doubt inherited from their forefathers, who always kept the valleys in a splendid state of irrigation. General Mitre's guide used to tell him the hour by the quantity of water in the aqueducts.

In the northern angle of the temple is the celebrated entrance which consists of a large monolith, now rent by a thunderbolt. This entrance is the most wonderful piece of architecture, not only owing to its gigantic dimensions as a monolith, but also on account of the artistic workmanship and its symbolic characters. It is composed of one piece of rock, worked on all sides, with a doorway in the centre and symmetrical 'niches' on both sides. The basis measures five yards, by 3¾ yards height and half a yard width. The eastern side attracts the attention immediately; the Aztec characters give it an Egyptian countenance; but as the observer attentively studies the stone, to his astonishment he sees that the characters before him are entirely original. The sculpture in general is common, but there is a geometrical perfection about the lines, really incredible. The figures form a procession; they seem to be running.

In the centre stands a fantastic figure, geometrically shaped, as it is all angles; the face is square, the nose is a rectangle; the eyes and orbits are not quite square; the mouth is open and empty, forming a transversal rectangle, the sides of which in relief from the lips; from the eyes descend two rays which look like tear drops. This truly mathematical face is surrounded with a square halo, forming rays, which terminate in double concentric circles and heads of animals very like condors; the head of the central ray must be excepted, as it is crowned with three 'panaches.' The body and short tunic costume are represented by a rectangle, subdivided by a horizontal belt, the right and left ends of which end in two heads of condors. The legs are uncommonly short. In his hands he holds two sceptres, one ornamented with one condor head, the other with two. On the sides are the heads of queer animals, and underneath the pedestal of this extraordinary figure its square head appears eleven times. To the right and left are six horizontal and parallel lines, three on each side; six processions are seen defiling, composed of figures all identically alike. Conventional figures of men, with rings and diamonds, each bearing a sceptre with three condor heads, are seen running in great haste.

Not far distant lies a second monolith portico of smaller dimensions, but with the same figures. Between both lies another huge monolith, 12 yards long, six wide and two high. How the unfortunate Indians transported this rock thirty or forty miles is astounding. They had no iron implements, either, to work the stone. The sculpture and chiselling of one piece of work must have been the work of generations.

General Mitre, after describing the ruins, refutes many erroneous statements of D'Orbigny, Tschudi, Rivero and many other authors; some of these writers were most respectable authorities, but others wrote about Tiahuanaco without ever visiting the ruins.

The General's book is most interesting, and spreads new light on a matter which has been forgotten. We humbly think that, in order to discover the builder of the place and when it was begun, depends on the discovery of the primitive American, and he is nowhere to be found, not even amongst the bones of the Mammoths.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

March 4th.

Two circumstances to note in the life of Victor Hugo: Death seems to be forgetting him, as advancing years make him younger, and the courses of flattery permanently served to him never intoxicate his brain. This is partly due to his accepting both attentions as a matter of course. He has just been entertained by the Parisian press at a banquet in honor of his 78th birthday, and to celebrate the 50th anniversary of his famous drama Hernani. It is said Hugo has friendly relations with 10,000 persons, of whom he knows 2,000 individually. The banquet in question was one of those agreeable reunions where men of all parties can meet and smile, and from which politics are as much banished as from a discussion on the general tariff. Another feature of the proceedings was, the submission of the representatives of the dissidents of the Romantic School, to Hugo, in the person of Emile Augier, the distinguished dramatist, who proposed the toast, in short, simple and expressive language—'To the Father.' The patriarch of contemporary French literature was equally happy; only his eulogiums of the Paris journals apparently ranked them far and away superior to those of London and New York. But Victor Hugo can only deal with subjects magniloquently. When Sarah Bernhardt recited the complimentary verses, in her white muslin character costume of Queen of Spain, the old poet with his massive brow resting on his right hand, let fall tears feelingly and fast, and so did his little grand-son George who sat in front of him, his constant companion, the cherub that watches over his life. It was rumored at the banquet, that M. Paul Meurice is making important poetic discoveries in the poet's waste-paper basket, for Hugo, in order not to let his hand lose its cunning, indulges every morning in poetical composition, as others do in dumb-bells and foils.

There is next to unanimity of opinion that since the nomination of General Farre as War Minister, the discipline of the army in the higher grades, where it was very much at fault, has been greatly restored. The new broom sweeps clean, and is not turned aside from his duty by any individuality, no matter how imposing the name or the position. The removal of the Chancellor of the Legion of Honor, Gen. Vinoy, a notorious Bonapartist and active executioner of the Coup d'Etat, is a great proof of necessary pluck on the part of the Republic, General Farre, aware that the new Chancellor will support, not cross him, has ordered that the decoration of the Legion of Honor shall be worn henceforth, as was originally intended, to represent France and not to advertise, as has been done, certain dynasties, by bastard additions to the insignia,

There appears to be an organised attempt to elbow Lent out of the calendar of social institutions: it is being rapidly selected as the season for general gaiety: the balls, public and private, continue to spring up like the sowings of Cadmus teeth: one dance stumps up another. Commercial guilds have held their annual gatherings, and the joy of the company was as gratifying as the receipts: no deep complaints were to be heard about depressed trade: business people admitted it had simply been worse, but was coming round to be better. Hope rather than discouragement reigned. Among the very original entertainments was a small dinner party given by the Chinese Ambassador: swallows' nests figured, fowls served on the most authentic native receipts: eggs that were cooked in lime, sea-snails, sharks' fins, and as many sauces as could be found in any French cookery book, The fruit, all dry, arrived recently from the neighbourhood of Pekin. A reception followed the dinner, and was largely attended, for it is not every day Parisians catch a glimpse of true China; the Ambassadress did all the honors with a gracefulness and charm quite Parisian; she wore a neck-lace, only displayed on extraordinary occasions, however; the sexes being separated during the evening—said to be a proof of high Chinese morality, threw a slight coldness over the remainder of the proceedings, the gentlemen were in one room and treated to music, some executed by the host himself, who is a son of harmony like Comte de Buest the representative of Austria; the ladies in a separate room were allowed the fullest liberty to chatter.

The Empress Eugenie has her life insured for heavy sums in several French offices, at the special risk fee demanded for crowned heads, namely, ten per cent above current rates: as she is no longer a crowned head, M. Rouher now demands the application of the usual premium. The Comte de Chambord has never been insured, save like an ordinary mortal: as for the Czar, he would have to insure his own life himself, as some public companies do themselves.

THE CZAR'S PALACE.

The Times publishes the following description of the Czar's palace, the scene of the late terrible explosion:—

"The Winter Palace, which is the residence of the Emperor and his Court during the severely cold months of the year, stands on the left bank of the Neva, and on the site which, in the reign of Peter the Great, belonged to his High Admiral, Count Apraxin, who bequeathed it to Czar Peter the Second. The Empress Anne, after her coronation at Moscow, took up her abode in Apraxin's house; but pulled it down in 1754, and had it rebuilt by Count Rastrelli, who completed his work in 1762, when Catherine was Empress. For seventy-five years the palace, which had occupied eighteen years in its construction, stood unchanged; but in the summer of 1837 a defect in the stoves by which the rigours of a Muscovite winter were combatted gave rise to a disaster by which the walls were reduced to a mere shell. shell. But the palace soon rose from its ashes, statelier than before; and the huge pile of four storeys now rises to a height of 80ft., its frontage being 455ft. long, and its depth 350ft. The principal entrance, or Perron des Ambassadeurs, is from the Neva, and leads by a magnificent flight of marble steps to the State apartments. This grand suite comprises the Throne Room, where the diplomatic corps generally present their congratulations on New Year's Day; the White Hall; the Hall of St. George, a parallelogram of 140ft. by 60ft.; the Gallery of the Field Marshals, so called from its puissant array of portraits, among them being a presentment of the Duke of Wellington; the Alexander Gallery, also full of battle-pictures, preserving the memories of actions in Poland, in Italy, in Germany, and in the Crimea. A room called the 'Guard Room' may be recalled by the visitors as one in which Reuchlin's pathetic picture, 'The Death of a Young Drummer,' hangs, or used to hang. But the name of the chamber must not lead to the supposition that the attempt on the lives of the Emperor Alexander and his family was made hereabout. The guard-room, which was wrecked and flung into a confused heap of splintered rafters, broken furniture, and agonised humanity, on Tuesday evening, is not near the state apartments, or on the same level. It is on the ground floor, amid a labyrinth of passages and small rooms, communicating one with another; and the conveyance of dynamite or other explosive substance into this quarter of the edifice might have been managed with or without connivance on the part of any one of the hundreds of persons inside the palace. But, according to the telegrams, a mine was sprung in the basement, below the floor of the chief guard-room; and it has yet to be ascertained whether this was accomplished by means of carrying the charge into the cellarage, or by operations of skilful sapping from a spot outside the walls. The message received by the Earl of Beaconsfield was one of the first to state that a Finland regiment was on guard at the time of the explosion."

It is thought that in all probability the dynamite by which the explosion was caused was brought into the building in small quantities by a pretended carpenter who had been working there ever since September last, and who is supposed to be a mechanical engineer. After sending away his fellow-workmen, he made, it is said, the final preparations, ignited the slow match, and then left the place. He has not yet been discovered.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Bachelors' Ball at the Coliseum was the talk of fashionable town yesterday. It was the greatest ball ever given in Buenos Ayres. We regret to say that several of the Bachelors, and some few Benedicts, looked completely 'done up' yesterday after their exertions on 'the light fantastic,' but the ladies looked as fresh as daisies, and asked when their Bachelor hosts intend to be 'at home' again.

The latest political news is that Dr Irigoyen is to be President, Dr Roche Vice President, and General Roca Minister of War. Anything for a quiet life.

The event of to-day is the turning of the first sod of the Exhibition Palace in Plaza 25 de Mayo. There will, we believe, be no special ceremony or any speeches. So much the better. Talk is frightfully cheap hereabouts.

Next Monday will not be a holiday as many suppose. The Feast of the Incarnation fell on Holy Thursday.

A well-informed Dutch newspaper, a great authority in political matters outside the limits of Holland, has published the following message:—"According to telegrams of the 28th February, received in London, General Roca has been proclaimed President of the Argentine Republic." So much for journalistic veracity.

Friends of the turf need not be reminded that the great Mercedes Races take place on the 5th and 6th inst. The turf is rising with the country, and we understand that the greatest success is anticipated.

In the way of a stiff shower of rain that in the small hours yesterday morning beat anything we remember. It was short, sharp, but decisive. A scientific subscriber measured a few of the rain drops, and found that a dozen of them filled a champagne glass. There must have been something in the bottom of that glass.

The Crown Prince of Germany has been lately breaking under foot some miserable prejudices. His Highness publicly attended the grand charitable concert at the Synagogue in Berlin, and expressed his satisfaction at being able to foster so charitable an object.

The Industrial appears this fortnight brimfull of the Centenary of Printing in Buenos Ayres; and we note a very interesting article on Immigration, showing that the Italian immigration is greater than that of all other nationalities put together, as far as regards the Argentine Republic. The statistics, nevertheless, are deficient, and the want of accurate figures is greatly felt.

The latest news from Corrientes smacks of Tiro Nacionalism, and one of our colleagues predicts another 15 de Febrero business. Pooh! That was nothing, a pleasant 'paseo militar', but Corrientes men are as fond of a friendly fight as if they had been born in Tipperary.

A wood-cutting colony of Indians is about to be started in the Grand Chaco.

Another Exhibition. Brazil announces one to be held in Rio next year. This will clash with New York's Show; yet a great many Europeans would kill the two birds with one stone. The Montevidean Chambers, hard up as they are now down there, have voted 20,000 pats. for Banda Oriental to appear at the Buenos Ayres Exbibition in Sept. next.

Preparations for the election of elections, that of the 11th inst., are now going on, and the 'mesas' are being constituted, in other words, the parties to receive the votes are being named. A colleague predicts that the real row will only commence when the election is over. Pleasant prophet.

The new Immigration Law is being rigidly enforced. Six passengers by the German steamer Koln have been put under lock and key: we have not heard why.

The officers of the Argentine iron-clad El Plata gave a grand ball last night to the elite of Montevideo, on board their splendid ship, which is now stationed in that port.

The first consignment for the Exhibition has come from Europe—50 cases of tile making machinery—and the Minister has allowed them in duty free.

The diplomatic difficulty between the reporter of the Nacion and the staff of the Nacional, concerning the Sarmiento proclamation in the Coliseum, has been amicably settled to mutual satisfaction. The reporter of our colleague asserts that he did not pull any gentleman by the pantaloons. Thus the affair has been arranged.

The European papers by the Orenoque announce the death of the Rev. Father Gil, one of the most illustrious members of the Jesuit Order. The deceased divine was a Spaniard.

Opera-bouffe and can-can connoisseurs are in great glee at the announcement that the French Company for the Variedades will be here next week. They are the first operatic swallows of the season, and the Italians will soon follow, under Signor Ferrari's wing.

Tacuman is going ahead. A concession has been granted to a private company to lay down tramway lines in all directions of the camps throughout the flourishing province; the neighbouring provinces are feeling quite uneasy about the matter, and are buying Remingtons.

The 8th Regiment of the Line has left its encampment at Zarate, per order of the War Office; this move and the review at the Chacarita have led to many political rumors. An important decree is daily expected from the War Department.

Messrs. Rajneri and Co. have received a list of the troupe for the Variedades. The artists are supposed to be French, but their names are Italian; the prima donna is Mdlle. Stani; the baritone Mansini.

The Cabildo is raising its head; the tower or spire is not as graceful as that of the Strassburg or Antwerp Cathedrals, but it will, nevertheless, be high enough. Many people will now require spectacles to see the hour.

Don Placido Bustamante has been proclaimed Governor of the important Province of Jujuy, the volcano of the Argentine Republic. After many years strife, peace at last smiles benignly on that unfortunate province.

The Santa Rosa left our port yesterday with a cargo of telegraph wire and posts for the projected line between Patagones and Choel-e-Choel. The soldiers will work at the line, and thus save the National Government much expense and trouble. It remains to be seen how the valiant sons of Mars like the job.

The President of the Bakers' Association in this city has published a note respectiug the bad quality of flour and the diminished size of the loaves: it appears that the millers are to blame. Last year some thousands of bags of flour were shipped from here to Rio, but the millers of Brazil pronounced the stuff so abominable that the negroes would not eat the bread made from it. These bags have been reshipped for the Plate, and will arrive here in a few days. The authorities should have a sharp look-out and pitch the flour into the river.

Dr. Zeballos has published a most important letter in the Prensa. This esteemed gentleman states that he belongs to no party, and that all the candidates are excellent men but that their free election is questionable. The question hinges on individuals, and not on principles,

A gentleman, just arrived from the country, was gaily walking along one of the back streets, near the Plaza Constitucion, when he was brought to a stand-still in an 'angiportu' and underwent the pleasant process of desnuding. Two villains made off with everything on him, coat, waistcoat, pantaloons and a new shirt, just bought at Sommer's. The nearest policeman was momentarily absent.

The young man who was fired at by Major Rebucion, in front of the Bier-Convent, died in the hospital from the effects of the wound. A most unfortunate affair.

Gold was a shade firmer to-day at 30.50 cash, at which price a fair amount of business was done, for end of April 30.55 paid, and 30.60 for May. The only reason given for the firmness of gold was the uncertainty in political circles as to the future President. Several brokers, who are considered well informed, stated that next week affairs will have a brighter aspect.

The scheme presented to the Provincial Senate for allowing our Municipality to borrow from the Morigage Bank 1½ million Cedulas has rather shaken the price of Cedulas. Prices opened at 84½, closing 84½, but for delivery on 30th April only 84 could be got; it is understood that the properties to be affected to the Mortgage Bank are good central rent-paying ones, so that the business for the Mortgage Bank will, with a little caution, be very good.

Exchange remains firm at 49½ bank paper, 5.23 on Antwerp, 5.22 on Paris. A regular amount passed yesterday at 4.26 paper. Takers are very limited at these rates, and a slight improvement for next mail may be expected.

Discounts 7½ to 9 per cent paper, gold 6 to 7 per cent, Government Bills 13 per cent.

Treasury Bonds sold to-day at 78, which shews a rise of ½ on last prices.

The great political news on 'Change to-day was the new Presidential combination, and its supporters are very sanguine of its success, although the market responded to the news with a slight rise in the premium on gold. It is said that General Roca has finally agreed to resign and give his support to Dr Irigoyen as President, with Dr Dardo Roche as Vice-President, and himself as Minister of War The elections are drawing so near now that the excitement intensifies day by day, but no one entertains a doubt of the final solution being peaceable.

This was rather a dull day on 'Change. The change in the weather, the election news, and the Bachelor's Ball at the Coliseum last night which left several leading members of the Bolsa quite 'hors de combat' to-day, all interfered with business.

Our special Boca reporter gives the following:—

"The Guarani left this morning for Asuncion and intermediate ports. Amongst her passengers I noticed Mr George Stewart, who goes to Paraguay for a short trip. Bon voyage.

"The 1.40 p.m. train from Boca on arriving at 1st Custom House siding ran into a cart and made firewood of it. One horse got its leg smashed. Driver miraculously escaped. No blame can be attached to engine driver, George Kern, as I was in the train myself and saw the whole affair. Entire blame lies with driver of the cart.

"High tide."

Advices from Tucuman report that an important concession for laying tramways in that city and several districts of the province has been given to a private Joint Stock Company. Up to the present these provincial tramway schemes have all gone to the wall, but, doubtless, as the Interior develops there will be room for them, in connection with railways, but in the thinly populated capitals of the provinces they won't pay for many a year to come.

Latest advices from Montevideo to hand announce a rise in Cardiff coal. A cargo has been sold at $12 fts on board, showing a rise of $2 fts on previous sales.

One lot of galvanized iron has been sold here at $220, delivered.

1,000 rolls of prime German fencing wire have been sold at reserved price. This wire is being heavily introduced into this market, and, we hear, finds ready acceptance.

The flooring of the Bolsa, which has of late attracted so much attention, was made by the firm of Messrs C Sackmann & Co., so favorably known here. We may say that no other establishment could have carried out the business in so short a time. Messrs Sackmann & Co employed 150 workmen.

The arrivals of produce in the Once are very scanty, and scarcely any buyers. Nearly all the wool is in; the out-standing lots are insignificant. Most of the wool brokers leave for Europe, their pockets and hats full of money.

Mr Hugh Muilin was welcomed on 'Change. He reports the camps out in the Carmen de Areco in splendid condition; the increase in the flocks promises well, and a good year is in prospect.

A cargo leaves to-day in the steamer Santa Rosa for Patagones which shows that the far South is gradually getting into the real web of Progress—the Telegraph system. The Santa Rosa takes a full cargo of wire, etc., to build the line from Patagones to Nanquen.

It is announced from Montevideo that on Monday last the Government paid to Messrs Maua & Co. the last instalment due to them for rescinding their contract in 1878. This closes that memorable matter.

The mail has brought advices from Paris to the effect that the Committee of the Paris Bourse have decided on allowing the Argentine Loans of 1868 and 1871 to be quoted on the official list. This certainly shows that the credit of this Republic has now more than recovered its former status in Europe, and it will attain a loftier height still when our present political ferment comes to an end, as it must shortly. Beyond the beneficial impression which the opening of a new market for any commodity, be it Bonds, Burgundy, or Barley, always creates, no immediate effect on the price of Argentine securities in Europe need be anticipated.

The memoria of Mr Balbin, the Finance Minister of the Province, is now in the printers' hands. A great portion of it is said to refer to the recent 'escandro' about Public Lands, justifying the Government in the matter.

There is much talk in flour and miller circles about a large consignment of flour expected from Rio in the Araucania, and which is stated to be bad River Plate flour, shipped from here last year, and which the Rio bakers could not use, so the importers have conceived the idea of sending it back here for sale. It is expected that the Port Authorities will take vigorous measures with this Grecian gift, which is almost as bad as yellow fever; the consequence to the public health of such flour getting into consumption might be most serious.

The returns of the National Treasury for the month of March show that the Minister of Finance is in clover:—

Receipts—
Balance on hand on 1st	$f. 1,307,470.16
Total receipts for month	2,275,269.88
Payments—
For Espedientes	1,363,279
For Libramientos	571,319
Balance on hand to April	1,648,140

It was stated on 'Change to-day that the Police have positive information that Sanchez, Messrs Ocampo's clerk, booked himself and a Frenchwoman for Bordeaux by the French steamer Niger, but whether they really sailed in that steamer cannot be known till she is overhauled at Rio by the police there, who have received full particulars of the case by telegraph.

Messrs Pascual Costa and Co sold a finca in Calle Arenales by Judicial order at 53,600 m|c to Dn Bertrando Vicenzo, the basis of sale being $22,567, and the area 27 yards by 21.

The following are the returns of the Buenos Aires Custom House for the first three months in the past ten years. It will be seen that 1880 has only been surpassed by last year, 1876 and 1873—

1871	2,435,393 85
72	2,909,703 15
73	3,630,784 16
74	3,473,270 82
75	2,809,404 77
76	5,458,823 19
77	2,607,081 74
78	3,235,246 08
79	3,553,150 14
80	3,472,689 42

The following is the latest about the London wool sales—

"The public sales of Colonial Wool continue to be well attended, and the demand is active, both for home consumption and for export at fully the advance established at the commencement of the series, viz., of from ½d to as much as 3d per lb. The trade for home-grown wool is also very firm, and the finer sorts command rather more money. In the value of inferior wool there is no material change."

The returns of the Banda Oriental Customs for the month of January have just been issued, and they are not encouraging, showing plainly how the political uncertainty down there affects trade. The total receipts for the month of all the Custom Houses were 326,766 pats. of which 261,735 were taken at Montevideo. If this continue, it is hard to see how the country's engagements, which were so punctually met under Colonel Laferre's regime, can still be fulfilled. The specie movement for the month with Europe, Brazil and Chile shows a balance in favour of the country of over a million, allowing for 171,500 pats. exported to Buenos Aires. The value of imports for the month was 1,137,000, and of the exports 2,329,000, the busy season accounting for the latter figure.

Messrs Oostendorp & Co., of Antwerp, report as follows under date of 3rd March:—

Wool—

Imports, 5,400 bales R. Plate.

Sales, 6,300 bales B. Aires, 1,300 bales Montevideo, 200 bales Cape, and 400 bales miscellaneous.

Stock, 6,000 bales B. Aires, 1,700 bales Montevideo, and 100 bales Entre Rios, besides 800 bales miscellaneous.

A very active enquiry has been noticed here during last fortnight at gradually hardening values, and B. Aires descriptions show an advance of about 10c. on last auctions' quotations; it must, however, be remarked that good average lots have comparatively attracted but little buyers' attention, the demand bearing chiefly on combing and superior clothing wools. Montevideo shipments have still been much sought after for the U. States; particulars of the business done have been kept private, but prices may be said to rule 1½ to 2½c. above January rates.

New clip B. Aires invoices, averaging a 1st, are at present worth about—

F.1.55-75 for well conditioned 31-32 o/o
F.1.60-62½ for good average 30 o/o
F.1.45-50 for secondary 27-29 o/o

Fair to good Montevideo shipments averaging a 2d, 39-40 o/o, are quoted f.2.20-30.

Scoured Buenos Aires wool has been made to stand in (washing and forwarding expenses excluded) at f.5.35-50 for fair, and f.5.60-85 for good to fine 1st.

The London Colonial Wool sales which opened on the 17th Feb. will close on the 12th inst. instead of the 22nd, the arrivals being delayed; prices for all kinds have improved 5 o/o further since opening. The next series will begin on the 20th April and it has been decided that about 350,000 bales will be brought forward at same.

Sheepskins—

Stock, 10 bales.

Invoices of ½ to full woolled prime B. Aires matadero skins averaging a 1st are worth f.1.70-75.

At the Liverpool auctions held on 25th Feb. 1,539 bales were offered and all sold at an advance of ½ to ¾d. for B. Aires, and ½ to ¾d. for Montevideo on January rates. The next sales are fixed for the 21st April.

After 'Change.—

Hides—

Only 80 dry River Plate found takers to-day. The auction of damaged hides takes place on 10th inst., and about 12,000 will be offered at same.

Wool—

722 bales River Plate sold at firm rates.

Arrival—

S.s. Hevelius from the River Plate.
